Construction Started On Elmwood Cemetery Mausoleum

The concrete footings have been poured and cinder block construction is expected to start immediately on a 26 by 40 foot mausoleum in the Elmwood Cemetery at Grayling.

The building will be of cinder block construction with glass block windows and will be divided into two separate rooms. The front room of the building will be utilized for a 20 by 24 foot chapel which will be so furnished that it will be presentable for last rites and will thus eliminate people attending services from having to crowd into a tent or stand out in the cold and rain during funeral services.

The Elmwood Cemetery Board announced that the building would cost around $6,000 to construct. The rear room of the building will be large enough; it was thought to accommodate the needs of the entire county and will be open for use to any county resident. It will be divided into compartments in which the coffins will be placed.

The cinder blocks are on hand for the start of construction, a part of the lumber and light fixtures have been donated along with several other smaller items. The City of Grayling has made available all of the funds that it can and the Township of Crawford County have been asked to contribute towards the total needed for the construction of the building. Grayling Township has contributed $500 to the project. The Oddfellows Lodge has given $25, George Burke $40, Jack Millikin $5, Laura Wallace $10 and E. R. Bay $3.50. More funds are needed and anyone interested in aiding in the building of the mausoleum can contact City Manager Max Davenport or mail their contribution to him.

Some idea of the saving of money by using the mausoleum during the winter months can be had by the statement of City Manager Davenport who said that it cost the City of Grayling about $300 per winter to snowplow the cemetery for funerals and to repair in the spring damage done to the cemetery by the plows. Each township and the County Road Commission are faced with the same expense during the winter months.

The charge for the use of the mausoleum will be nominal for citizens of Grayling and the townships contributing. It is expected to bring in just enough to cover the upkeep of the structure. People from out of the contributing area will be charged a larger fee which has as yet not been set by the Cemetery Board, it was said.

Grayling P. T. A. Installs Officers

The fourth grade won the room prize for having the most parents present at the last regular P. T. A. meeting. This was easily explained as that grade under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Emil Giegling, presented a very fine program of songs.

This being the final meeting of the year, the new officers, John Schofield, president; Grover Cox, first vice-president; Mrs. Matt Edson, second vice-president; Mrs. Verma Deckrow, secretary; Mrs. Norval Stephan took her place as she was not able to be present; and Mrs. Van Smith, treasurer, were installed by the district director of the area, Mrs. Clare Harris of Midland. Mrs. Harris who had previously been present with a corsage, gave a short talk which was followed by one by A. Brown of Midland, council president of that county. Mrs. Brown was also present.

Mrs. Carl Richardson retiring president gave the annual report (Continued on Page 5)

The Grayling Independent Baseball team served notice Sunday on the North Central Michigan Baseball League that they are as big a power this year as last, as they soundly trounced a visiting Fairview nine, 22 to 3.

Led by Max Niederer at the plate, the local boys scored in every inning but the second as they smashed out 23 hits. Fairview was able to only total seven hits off Bob "Musty" Gildner, Grayling hurler. Each team committed five errors.

Niederer collected five base hits in six trips to the plate as he rapped out two singles, two doubles and a triple. Gildner was credited with seven strikeouts. Ross Thompson handled the catching duties. The local team used two other high school players as well as Niederer as Tom Anthony and Bob Horning each got into the game in the outfield. High School Coach Joe Bogart also played at second base for Grayling.

Fairview used Yoder and McNelly on the mound with Rogers catching in a vain attempt to stop the Grayling powerhouse. The locals started off with 3 runs in the first inning and were held scoreless in the second. They added 3 more in the third, 2 in the fourth, 3 in the fifth, 2 in the sixth, 4 in the seventh and 5 in the 8th. Fairview tallied a lone run in each of the second, fifth and 6th innings.

The Grayling team moves into Roscommon next Sunday for a league fray which should prove to be a good ball game.

Always willing to help if the need arise, Without unpleasant thoughts and carry a frown, He'd pop up willingly by your side. The pleasure was always Dick Brown.

All these kindnesses found in a man. Heaped up would make quite a mound, With a very big heart and a helping hand. Who could ever forget Dick Brown?

New Business Enterprise Opens In Lovells

Something new and entirely different in a gift shop opened last week in Lovells, to be known as the AuSable Trading Post. After wintering in Arizona and absorbing ideas the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Wood, decided on bringing a bit of the southwest to our northland.

The western ranch type idea has been carried out in the new building and is very attractive in the Spanish buff coloring with tile red trim. Genuine Navajo rugs will be featured as well as blankets, jackets, cactus novelties, mineral specimens from the Rockies, Mexican imports and many other unusual gifts and souvenirs.

The meeting was off to start on the Cadet Training program with all the cadets receiving training instruction in the newly obtained Navigational Trainer. The Trainer which simulates actual flight actions, cruises at 160 with a maximum of 180 m.p.h., it is powered by four 6 volt batteries, has an inter communication radio so instruction can be given to the student at all times. Each cadet received from Lt. Nels Olson a different problem to work out in the Trainer. A short time was devoted to the operation of the radio telephones in which some instructions were given to all members. A lot of improvements have been put into the building, a large bulletin board has been put up which is going to be an asset to every member. All notices and operations are to be posted at all times.

The Public Interest

In one of his newspaper columns, Norman Thomas, who has long headed the Socialist Party in the United States, says: "The job of writing a really good labor bill still remains to be done. Such a bill . . . must find a better way of dealing with the problem of paralysis by strikes than the present injunction methods of enforcing a cooling off period or than the power, which President Truman claims, to get an absolute injunction in an emergency."

"In a democracy it ought to be possible to handle these matters on agreed terms which do not involve any serious impairment of collective bargaining or the loss of labor's basic rights but which still give protection to the modern community whose very life depends upon the continuous operation of certain industries and services."

What gives this significance is that Mr. Thomas' sympathies have always been on the side of labor. However, as a student of society, he is also aware that the interests and security of the public at large must come ahead of those of any special group—whether it be a labor union or a corporation. For many years some of the best known labor leaders have been working on the theory that they have "rights" which are superior to the rights of anyone else, and that the country can like it or lump it. The American people, to put it in plain language, finally got a bellyful of that attitude.

Undoubtedly, a better labor law will some day be written. In the meantime, the Taft-Hartley Act, in its major provisions, is the fairest and best law we have yet had. It has struck a balance between the power of labor on one hand and the power of industry on the other. It recognizes that the public interest is always paramount. And it has freed the rank and file of labor from dictation by labor bosses.

A SERIOUS ILLNESS IN MY FAMILY MEANT
A $3684 HOSPITAL BILL FOR ME...

Blue Cross covered all but $37.50!"

Case No. 54-49325-64

98 days in the hospital. The bill for drugs and dressings came to $2828.90. Laboratory fees alone were $116.50. Total cost: $3684.90. Patient's family paid only $37.50. Blue Cross took care of the rest.

Figures show that one person in every ten will go to a hospital this year

NEW medical techniques call for expensive drugs and equipment. General hospital expenses have gone up, along with everything else. That's why typical hospital bills are so high these days—in some cases as much as three times as high as they were in 1941! And that's why you and your family need Blue Cross protection now more than ever before.

No other health-care plans offer so much for so little.

Blue Cross, Michigan's wholly non-profit, voluntary health plans—pays out in benefits an average of 85 cents from each dollar received. Blue Cross Hospital Plan provides up to 120 days of hospital care in any of the 172 participating hospitals in Michigan. No cash limit on the benefits covered. In addition, Blue Cross Medical-Surgical Plan pays liberal amounts for operations and your own doctor's calls at the hospital in non-surgical cases.

Blue Cross is available to employed people through group enrollment . . . No physical examination or health statement required.

You can join more than 1,500,000 Michigan people who already enjoy Blue Cross protection. Talk to your employer . . . or ask your local Blue Cross representative . . . or write directly to one of the Blue Cross offices listed below for full information.

BY PETE

Ever wonder how the Michigan lumberjack came to develop his amazing vocabulary, more especially in the realm of plain and fancy cussing, and the Tall story? Well, there were the sober-faced Indian legends and the colorful French Canadians who preceded him in this land of lore but I prefer to believe that the lumberjack was predominately a weaver of whole cloth. Otherwise how account for the fabulous personality of a Paul Bunyan or the fact that the tall story became his passport, letter of credit, his sure identification wherever he might be?

For the Michigan "jack" there's no substitute. He's as real as the palm of your hand and will find kindred spirits any place by means of the tall story. Here's a little story about a Michigan "jack" in New York, that may illustrate. Clay Woods sat in Central Park, a long lank man with grey hair and shoulders with a peculiar hunch. He'd measured every tree in the park with his eye a dozen times. He knew how many logs they'd cut and what they'd scale at the mill. He was lonely. People were rushing round like mad and getting no place. Finally he thought he'd go take a look at Radio City. He'd only been in New York a couple of days, but he'd seen everything else.

He plunked down his 65c for a "conducted tour," and with about a dozen other assorted people he started out behind a young lady who was cute as the dickens, and quick on the trigger. She twirled a cane like a drum-major and strutted her stuff as she explained things and kidded them along. The crew watched the drum-major and listened to her lingo. Finally she got them guessing on the height of some columns that supported a dome that looked high as the sky. It was tricky. There were even stars shining through moving clouds. Guesses were all the way from a hundred feet to ten thousand. Clay said nothing, until the drum-major turned to him like he was some kind of a new bug she'd discovered in her pantry. "Want to make a guess, Mister?" she said, showing her pretty teeth.

"Sixty feet," Clay said, squirming a little. "Three 16s and a 12. Log run, they'd scale about 862 feet apiece. In actual board-run they might do a little better." The drum-major, who, though she must have been 25 had probably never run across just that kind of an animal before, cut his throat with her eyes. "People who've taken this tour before and so know how high the columns are," grunted, "shouldn't embarrass other by making a vulgar display." She whisked past him but the crowd weren't following her, they were all crowded round Clay. Clay was no longer lonely, he had discovered a mess of "kindred spirits." He admitted modestly that he was a Michigan lumberjack, and that his trade was "timber-lookin'." At 10 or 12 he'd been peeling spuds and laundering tin-plates in cookshanties across the state. "But," he said, "my lumberwood experience begun long fore that. 'Among my earliest recollections,' he said, 'was going out with my dad to saw down pine trees. In the summer when it was hot an' the pitch was runnin' good it was my job after we got the tree down, an' my dad was measurin' it up for logs, to get the kerosene bottle an' soak the pitch of the saw. Sometimes I'd get to chewin' on that saw on account my gums hurt where my teeth was comin' through. Reason I remember it so well is 'cause that pitch blended with that kerosene tasted just like red-squirrel whiskey."

Sometimes I'd be sittin' on that fresh-cut stump, an' when my dad would holler for me to 'bring the saw,' I'd jump up so quick the safety-pin would break an' leave my diaper stuck to the stump, an' my dad would have to come back an' help me chop 'em loose. He was a patient man though. He seldom made me go back to work without my pants." (All rights reserved by E. J. Petersen, Sand Lake, Mich.)

Plan Grass Day Program

Farmers will find the latest information on hay and grass management at this year's Grass Day program. The events are being arranged by the Michigan State College extension service and local planning committees, reports Orville F. Walker County Agricultural Agent.

The program is scheduled for June 29, on the Ostrander farm, located in Afton in Cheboygan County, and June 27, on the Fred Sheppard farm, located in Ogemaw County. Extension specialists from Michigan State College co-operated with these farmers in preparing demonstration plots of various seedings there last fall for inspection by Grass Day visitors. These plots will show fertilizer results erosion control, and will be used in harvesting demonstrations.

Well received by farmers throughout the state last year, Grass Days are designed to bring farmers up-to-date information on the establishment, management, harvesting, and utilization on higher yielding forage of better quality.

Grassland farming is a phase of agriculture that has been seriously neglected in modern farming with its emphasis on high corn production, authorities believe. A well-balanced rotation, including both soil-building sod crops and grain and row crops, will provide the most satisfactory results through a period of years.

Other features of the Grass Day will include demonstrations of weed control gully control, and efficient use of forage. Farm equipment dealers will also bring in new harvesting machinery and other equipment for the visitors' inspection.

County Agent Walker, urges all

Crawford and Kalkaska farmers to plan now for this important event. A day spent at the Grass

CAN THE ATOM BOMB KEEP THE PEACE?

The atom bomb is the greatest agent for peace in the history of mankind, because if it ever is used, the war-making abilities of a nation may be destroyed in thirty days. Read "Atomic War Strategy Holds Hope for Peace," in The American Weekly, great magazine distributed with this Sunday's (June 12) issue of The Detroit Times.

Grasshopper Warnings To County Farmers

Yes, the grasshopper has al-ready made his appearance and will be here all summer as star boarder if you allow him to stay. No doubt the warm spell we had some time ago was favorable for the hatching of their eggs. Last week Friday, Ray Janes, from Michigan State College and your County Agricultural Agent, visited several fields in various parts of the county and found hop-pers in all of them. These hop-pers have been able to withstand the cold freezing weather we have had recently, so you can consider the grasshopper a pretty hardy fellow. There are several different kinds of grasshoppers and some of them will not make their appear-ance until later in the season. If you are interested in killing these hoppers early, you may do so by buying spraying materials from local merchants. Farmers should check at least once a week to see if hoppers are hatching. The time to kill them is when they are small. In ap-plying sprays, follow the direc-tions of the manufactures.
